L-ARGININE

It is an important amino acid which helps in production of nitric oxide, a potent vasodilator by nitric oxide synthase pathway. Increased production of nitric oxide will improve blood circulation and it also means increased supply of oxygen and nutrients to vital tissues. Therefore, L-arginine remains popular for maintaining lean muscle mass, immunity and power circulation amongst athletes.

GOKSHURA (Tribulus terrestris)

Gokshura is very popular Ayurveda herb for maintaining male vitality and virility. It possesses high quality saponin chemical constituents which help in maintaining urogenital health. It is also touted to possess testosterone boosting properties although results in these studies are inconclusive.

MACA (Lepidium meyenii)

The herb belonging to Broccoli family and resembling turnip is historically used as an aphrodisiac. Maca is used in Peru as a natural tonic and vitality enhancer. It protects yourself from the dangerous hormone stimulants to maintain healthy sexual vitality. It also boosts libido naturally. Maca independently acts to increase sexual desires across diverse population and it was observed that it's effect is independent to that of serum testosterone levels [1].
